GONDOLA GETAWAY

Like a giant genie's slipper, the black gondola glides across tranquil Alamitos Bay, a gondolier rhythmically pushing one oar. With the sun sparkling off the calm waters, he croons "O Sole Mio" as his passengers sit back and relax, bound for the wind-sheltered waterways of Naples Island, where million-dollar homes and docked yachts line the canals. Ever since the fleet of Venetian boats were launched off Long Beach 20 years ago, more than 400 young men and women have donned gondoliers' straw hats, black pants and striped T-shirts. Some are opera students. Others are schoolteachers. Others just have a love of the Italian traditions and music. On your hour-long cruise, the gondoliers will guide their boats through the calm and picturesque waterways, passing under foot-bridges that cross over the narrow canals. (Cups, ice buckets and ice are provided on the gondolas should you wish to bring your own beverages on board.) The gondolas seat anywhere from 6 to 14 passengers each and the fleet can accommodate a maximum of 52 passengers.
