

On Location in Hollywood

with Lunch at Musso & Frank Grill

Experience Hollywood's heyday as you set out with a local guide to take a step back in time to the golden age of the silver screen! Throughout the day, you'll visit the locations of many of your favorite movies including "Sunset Boulevard" (1950), "Rebel Without a Cause" (1955), A Star is Born (1954), Day of the Locust (1970), and more! You'll travel down Hollywood Boulevard with a drive past the Pantages Theatre, the Hollywood Roosevelt Hotel and Paramount Pictures. You'll also tour through downtown Los Angeles with Chinatown, Union Station, the Orpheum Theater and the Million Dollar Theater. All this, plus lunch at Hollywood's oldest restaurant, Musso & Frank Grill. Since it first opened in 1919, this historic restaurant has been entwined with the history of Hollywood and the film industry. Early on, Charlie Chaplin dined here so often that he was given his own booth, which still occupies the southwest corner of the restaurant. His party regularly included Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks and Rudolph Valentino. Studio execs and directors such as the Warner brothers and Cecil B. Demille also frequented Musso & Frank Grill, as did Greta Garbo, Gary Cooper and Humphrey Bogart. When you stop here for lunch, you'll enjoy your choice of entree from a select menu that includes everything from Spaghetti and Ravioli to Welsh Rarebit, a Hot Turkey Sandwich or Chef Salad. The tour continues after lunch before bidding our Hollywood historian farewell and returning home.
